Life after redevelopment agencies?

Mayor Christopher Cabaldon announced Friday that he is forming a special advisory team to look at how the city might accelerate community redevelopment efforts if its redevelopment agency is dismantled by new state laws.

Governor Brown has proposed eliminating local redevelopment agencies to help balance the state's budget. Local governments will be able to keep their agencies functioning if they pay the state some hefty costs—a price which West Sacramento leaders say the city can't afford.

The city is hoping that an outside lawsuit will be successful in thwarting the change to redevelopment law, but the new task force seems aimed at preparing for the worst case, from the mayor's point of view.

"We have assembled some of the brightest, most creative, and accomplished experts to help scope proven and innovative strategies that West Sacramento can use to stay on the leading edge of economic prosperity," said Cabaldon in a press release.

He named City Councilman Chris Ledesma as chair of the mostly-private sector group. Ledesman said "failure is not an option."

Other team members include: Meg Arnold - Sacramento Area Regional Technology Alliance (SARTA), Grant Deary - NorCal Beverage, Jeffrey Dorso - Land Use Attorney, Pioneer Law Group, Catherine Dunwoody - Executive Director, CA Fuel Cell Partnership, Jack Ehnes - CEO, California State Teachers Retirement Systems, Mark Friedman - President, Fulcrum Property (Bridge District Developer), Lon S. Hatamiya - President and CEO of the Hatamiya Group; AgriVest Ventures, Barbara Hayes - Sacramento Area Trade and Commerce Organization (SACTO), James Morante/Clay Schmidt - PG&E, Donald Terry - Community Development, Wells Fargo Bank, Dr. J. Robert Fountain - Regional Economics Consultant, Denise Seals - CEO/President, West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, Val Toppenberg - retired Redevelopment Agency Director, City of West Sacramento, and Bob Murphy - retired City Attorney, City of West Sacramento

The advisory team will meet over the next three to six months to study issues such as business retention and business recruitment. It will also look at strategies and mechanisms for community investment related projects that in the past have been mainly funded by tax-increment financing through the city redevelopment agency.

"We are disappointed and angry with the State's egregious and short-sighted action to abolish redevelopment," said Cabaldon in the press statement. "But our community expects West Sacramento to continue what we've started, so beginning this process now is important to being ahead of the curve and to remaining competitive."

Flags go up for 9/11 memorial

A mannequin representing an exhausted New York firefighter sits in vigil at the flag display in Southport.

The flags went back up from Friday to Sunday to commemorate 9/11.

The display, at the corner of South River Road and Jefferson Boulevard in Southport, was the work of John Vinson. He's put up a flag display every year since 9/11.

This year, in addition to several hundred large flags, Vinson put up nearly 3,000 miniature flags—a memorial for each of the victims of the terrorist attacks of September 11.

Vinson is a retired state worker and a general contractor. When he started the memorial project, he was a West Sacramento resident, but he now lives across the river. Still, the annual display continued.

"It's become a thing people in West Sacramento expect," he told the News-Ledger.

He may be right.

When the News-Ledger put a short description of the flag project on its Facebook page on the Internet last week, 19 people hit the "like" button for that story. Several more left positive comments, such as these two:

"We stop and see this every year. We stop and see this every year. Awesome that Mr. Vinson has added the 3000 flags for the victims in honor of the 10th anniversary." And: "Amazing to see."

Dan Harris -- a city employee for over 20 years -- now has an art display on exhibit at "Gallery 1075," inside the community center at 1075 West Capitol Avenue.

Dan was the city's in-house graphic artist, responsible for such projects as the design of the city's printed newsletter, "City Lights." Some of his digital artwork and his artwork for the Courtland Pear Festival are among the works on display.

He and his work were the subject of an artist's reception on Thursday. The exhibit is free to view, and runs through Sept 30.

Sheriff plans to expand jail inmate 'road crew' program

Yolo County Sheriff Ed Prieto announced last week that his department has instituted a "road crew" program for jail inmates.

According to Prieto, a crew of one or two inmates at a time is assembled to fix potholes on county roads. They are supervised by an unpaid reserve deputy sheriff "so there is no taxpayer impact here," said Prieto's office.

"I wanted to implement this program to assist Public Works by having our crew doing potholes, thus freeing up their employees for more serious duties," said the sheriff in a press release. "I also wanted to create yet another opportunity for our inmates to learn other skills, while incarcerated, in order to increase their chances in the job market upon their release."

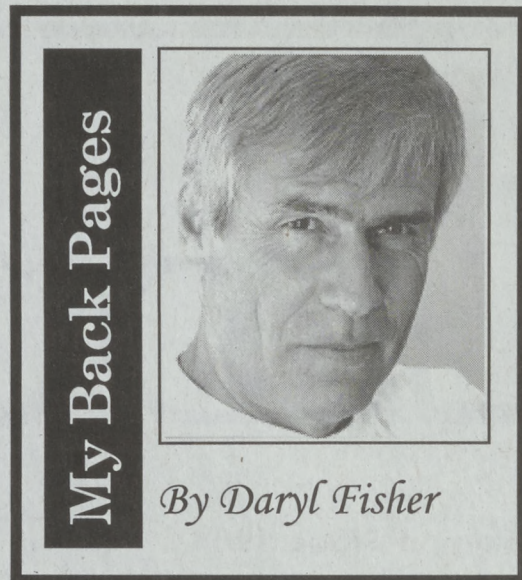

So far, jail crews have filled about 90 potholes since May, the department added. The sheriff is looking to expand the pilot project to three days per week.

The most wonderful time of the year

Note: Daryl is taking the week off. Below is one of his favorite columns from the past.

There are certain times of the year which most parents eagerly await. For some it's Christmas, when the house is colorfully decorated and the children can hardly wait to tear into their packages. For others, it's Halloween, when the kids look so cute in their little costumes, or Easter, when they seem so grown up in their very best clothes. Birthdays of course are always fun, too, but for this parent, the one day of the year which can never get here soon enough is "back to school" day!

Maybe it's just me, but this had been a particularly squirrely summer and my kids (of which there are four) spent most of July and almost all of August bouncing off the walls and finding new and creative ways to drive me and their mother nuts. For instance, this was the summer that my teenage daughter decided to spend her Sunday mornings helping out at the Sacramento Zoo. Now, at first glance, that seems like the kind of quality activity any good parent would encourage their child to undertake. But last Sunday, as she prepared to drive off to the zoo, the last words out of her mouth were, "And by the way, Dad, I'll

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

finally be working with the carnivores today."

Now, on Sunday mornings, I usually try to relax in my favorite chair and leisurely read the Sacramento Bee from one end to the other. Unfortunately, one simply cannot do that knowing his only daughter is out somewhere interacting with a bunch of lions and bears.

When my daughter finally arrived home and I had convinced myself that she was free of any fang or claw marks, I asked her how her day had gone.

"Oh, I had a great time," she assured me.

"Did you learn anything?" I inquired.

"Dad," she explained with amazement, not quite using these words, "you really haven't seen animal droppings until you've seen grizzly bear droppings!"

My sons have also gone out of their way this summer to make my life much more interesting than it needs to be. One has taken to sneaking out of the house late at night and leaving a blanket dummy behind in his place; another has started drawing his own anti-social and often blood-dripping comic strip; and the third, who isn't even ten yet, has somehow learned a number of cuss words that I don't even use.

So, for more summer weeks than I care to admit, I have been eagerly waiting to hand my children back over to the overworked and underpaid teachers of our local schools. And each year, almost miraculously, they somehow manage to get all four of them back on track and interested in activities which won't cut another year or two off my life.

There is, of course, like everything else, a downside to back to school day. Among other things, the preparation alone can kill you. All the boys have, once again, grown at least two inches, and although they don't particularly mind going off to school prepared for a flood, their mother does, and they all need new pants. They also need haircuts, book backpacks, pencils and pens, notebook paper, folders, underwear, and worst of all, new footwear. I just can't seem to get it into my head that shoes, which only last about three months nowadays anyway, no longer cost $9.99 a pair like they did when I was a kid growing up in West Sacramento. In fact, a person could almost spend a week vacationing in Hawaii for what it now costs to buy four teenagers brand new shoes.

Anyway, when the glorious morning of back to school day finally does arrive, one is still not completely out of the woods. Among other things, six people suddenly all need to use the same bathroom at the very same time; you have to make sure everyone knows the new hiding place of the house key; you have to somehow come up with all kinds of weird combinations of nickels, dimes and quarters (which you don't have to begin with) to pay for milk money and assorted lunches; for those who have decided to take a bag lunch, you have to referee the fight between who gets the desirable Jell-O chocolate pudding snack and who gets stuck with the dreaded fruit cup; and finally, you have to call your boss and explain you're going to be at least an hour late for work because it's the first day of school and the whole family is in chaos.

My sons have also gone out of their way this summer to make my life much more interesting than it needs to be.

One has taken to sneaking out of the house late at night and leaving a blanket dummy behind in his place; another has started drawing his own anti-social and often blood-dripping comic strip; and the third, who isn't even ten yet, has somehow learned a number of cuss words that I don't even use.

Is it worth it? You bet it is. Anything just to be able to utter those six wonderful words: "they are all back in school!"

Leading Raider rushers included Malik Dumetz, 65 yards (including a 53-yard touchdown reception); Adam Tyson, 49 yards; Orlando Drake, 44 yards and a 31-yard touchdown run. Quarterback Joey Beall was six for seven in passing, with a TD throw. (Info from DE'ONNA JACK)

Assault in teen center

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

An 18-year old is under arrest after an assault Thursday afternoon at the Collings West Sacramento Teen Center on Merkley Avenue. The 16-year old male victim was treated and released for minor injuries.

Lieutenant Tod Sockman of the West Sacramento Police Department said police got the call at about 2:05 p.m.:

"The suspect entered the teen center with the sole purpose of beating up a (particular) juvenile who was in the teen center playing video games," said Sockman. "He hit him a couple times in the face, and the victim was bleeding from the face."

A number of officers sped to the scene to try to figure out if the suspect was among the teens milling about. He wasn't.

"The police showed up en masse. All the kids had basically the same clothing as the description of the suspect. Officers determined where the suspect lived and arrested him there."

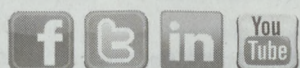

Eric Lizzarraga was arrested for felony assault, and jailed.

NEWS-LEDGER EDITORIAL:

Congratulations to kids & schools

We can debate how important student test scores are, and debate the merits of too much "teaching to the test." Do students lose out on developing critical thinking skills, or creativity, when they're taught more and more just how to hit the right answers?

Regardless of your views on test scores, some congratulations are due to Washington Unified School District. Schools across the district have generally improved their test score results substantially (a combined 48 points on the API) over two years. Much of this is due to the trickle-down effect of pressure from the school board and board president Dave Westin.

To concentrate on test scores and not make any gains might be considered a failure, but a 48-point gain is a good thing in anyone's book. And by surrounding itself in an aura of success, the district is in a good place to attract more energy and more success — from students, their parents, the faculty, and the community.

Westmore Oaks Elementary School has joined Bridgeway Island and Southport elementary schools as an 800-point API campus. That deserves some special recognition. Maybe the three schools deserve a surprise march-through by the River City High School marching band. . .

Speaking of "critical thinking skills":

Ten years ago, the News-Ledger went to press on the day of the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks. In an editorial, we noted that this nation was shocked and hurt and would want to strike back (all of which were obvious points). We also warned against a rush to judgment, remembering that Islamic extremists had been initially blamed by many Americans for the Oklahoma City terrorist bombing.

Investigation later showed that Oklahoma City had instead been the work of Americans with no Islamic connection.

But it turned out that 9/11 was indeed the result of Islamic terrorists. Still, many of us indeed jumped to (or were led to) some other factually wrong conclusions. Our government told us that Saddam Hussein and Iraq were involved in 9/11 and Hussein was linked to al Qaeda. This made little factual sense. There was scant evidence of a connection, and why would a selfish secular despot want close ties to a group dedicated to rule not by people like himself, but by Islamic extremists?

Yet many of us accepted this allegation, and we as a nation used it as reason for one of the worst foreign policy decisions in American history. We wanted to hit someone back after 9/11, and we humans are often not very particular about who gets hit or caught in the crossfire when we're mad.

We chose to invade a country which was not a serious threat to us, and we chose to unseat a dictator whom we had already militarily contained. We popped the lid off a country that was riddled with factional strife and hobbled by a lack of civic institutions, we took on responsibility for building a new nation to replace the old one. We failed to foresee that by becoming an occupying force among squabbling factions, we would create new enemies and nurture new terrorist threats. We did all this partly under a 9/11 smokescreen.

And, to make it worse, we took resources out of Afghanistan (where we had business) too soon, in order to pursue the bigger adventure in Iraq. The Afghanistan situation then went downhill.

The chief reasons given to us for invading Iraq all turned out to be factually wrong and (to put it charitably) were "oversold" by our leaders. How short-sighted we were. Could it be that we are still?

A local 'kid extraordinaire'

(Editor's note: The News-Ledger is trying a new feature today — a profile of a remarkable youth, from time to time.

By Anita Varney

Jake Manning, a ten-year old from West Sacramento, qualifies as this week's "Kid Extraordinaire."

Recently, he was in downtown Sacramento with his mother and sister. Jake passed by a homeless man. Most people didn't acknowledge the man, but Jake was troubled by what he saw. When they got to their car, Jake asked his mother if he could give the man some of his allowance money. His mother agreed, and Jake took the money he had been saving for a new video game and gave it to the homeless man.

Jake was asked if he had a message for others.

"Yes, to help people who need it!" he said. They might have gotten fired from a really big job by not giving the boss something, or something (else). Help others, not just homeless people, but people who have lost their houses and jobs."

Kenneth Leash & Arnel Reyes wed at the Bridgeway boathouse

The marriage ceremony was at the Boathouse in Bridgeway Lakes. Both Ken and Alyssa are graduates of River City High School. Ken is currently in the United States Air Force and Alyssa is employed at CalSTRS.

'About 95 percent' says supervisor:

McGowan reports he's both alive and well

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Yolo County Supervisor Michael McGowan told the News-Ledger last week that the September 13 supervisors' meeting was going to have special significance to him – for a couple of reasons.

“McGowan was recovering from prostate cancer surgery (successful) and from a life-threatening infection that developed afterward and sent him back to the intensive care unit.

“Tuesday the 13th, we're going to do a resolution recognizing September as prostate cancer awareness month,” said McGowan. “We've done this for several years, and for some reason, I've been the board member who handled it the last couple of years. This year, it's a bit more poignant – in June, I had prostate cancer surgery. Coincidentally, it will also be my first day back to work on the 13th.”

The illness gave him a roller-coaster ride. “It went from the good news that they got all the cancer out, to the bad news that I had a secondary infection and had to go to the hospital for one or two more weeks. I was taken out of my home in a stretcher, and some of our firefighters told me ‘you're a very sick man.’”

MIKE MCGOWAN: back on the job, and ready to be a 'poster boy' for prostate cancer checks (News-Ledger file photo)

“I want people to know I'm fine – I'm back in the saddle,” he said last week. “More importantly, I'm an example that if you see your doctor and you take the tests on schedule, you've got a really good chance of coming out fine. Guys have a tendency to sort of put these things off.”

McGowan said men should talk to their doctor about prostate cancer.

“I want to highlight the fact that guys ‘of a certain age’ should start taking their annual physical and PSA blood tests seriously. If they do catch this cancer in an early stage, it's just about 100 percent curable. If you wait until it spreads to other parts of the body, you're down to about one-third.”

The illnesses took some weight and strength off the West Sacramento resident. But he's getting active again.

“It was an ‘unplanned diet.’ I still take it easy, but I am getting stronger. I'm walking about three and a half miles a day.”

Yesterday, he was scheduled to present the county's resolution on prostate cancer awareness – to some familiar faces who would be receiving it.

“I'll be giving the resolution to some of the guys from the UC Davis Medical Center cancer unit,” he said.

McGowan is married (to wife Sue). He is a former West Sacramento city councilman, and was the city's first mayor after it incorporated in 1987.

Surplus Real Property Advisory Committee “7-11 Committee”

The Washington Unified School District is looking for community members interested in being a part of a 7-11 Committee. Pursuant to Section 17389 of the Education Code, prior to any declaration of surplus and sale of any real property owned by the District which is no longer needed for its mission purpose, the Board shall appoint no fewer than 7 nor more than 11 people in the community to make up a Surplus Real Property Advisory Committee (“7-11 Committee”). Each member shall represent specified sections of the community. The purpose of the 7-11 Committee process is to involve the community in the initial discussion, analysis, and formation of recommendations as to which real properties may no longer be needed by the District in the long term. This committee will meet, discuss the needs of the District for certain real properties, and eventually provide a report to the Board as to which properties should be surplus.

Interested community members should be willing to meet from 5:30 – 7:00 p.m. on the first Wednesday night of each month beginning in November. We anticipate that there will be four to six meetings.

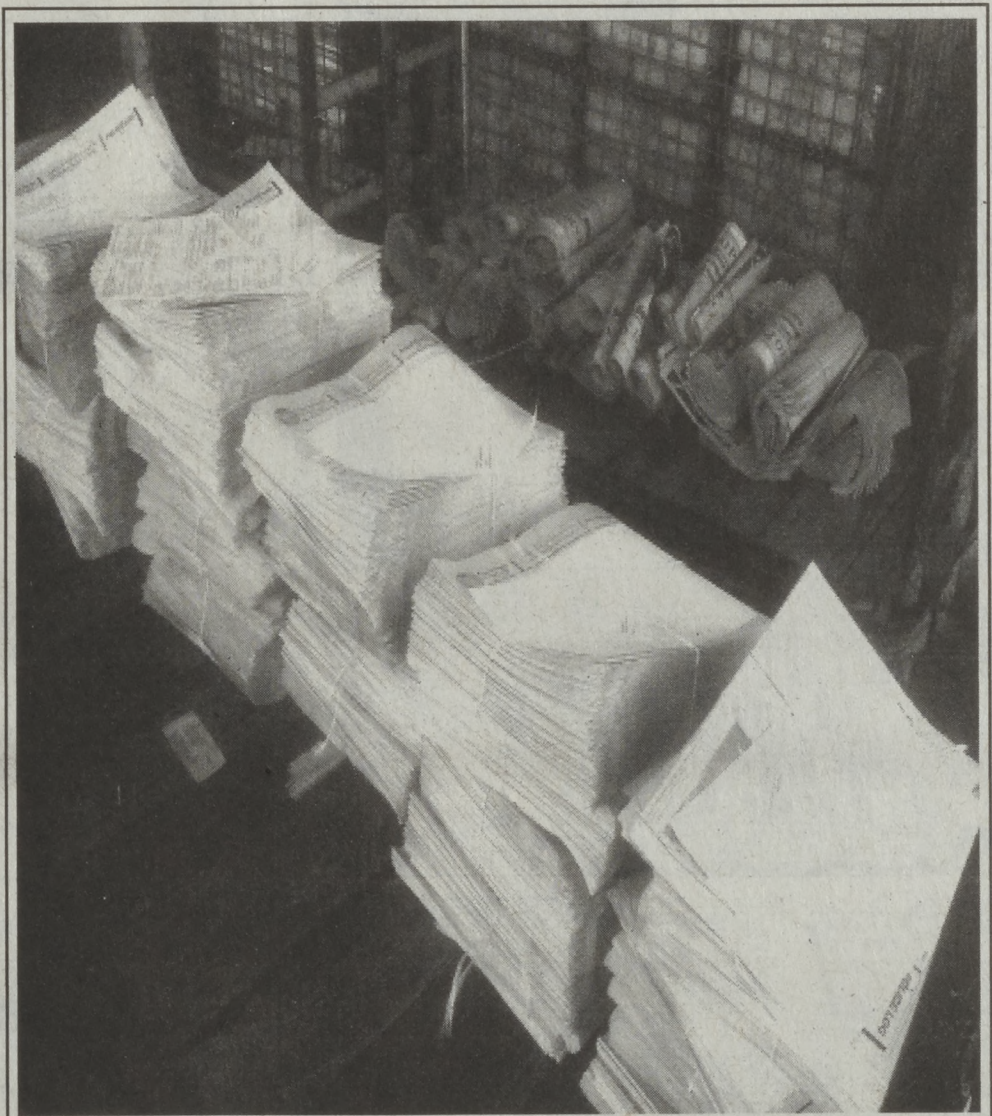

Pursuant to Section 17389. A school district advisory committee appointed pursuant to Section 17388 shall be representative of each of the following:

- (a) The ethnic, age group, and socioeconomic composition of the district.

- (g) Parents of students.
- (h) Persons with expertise in environmental impact, legal contracts, building codes, and land use planning, including, but not limited to, knowledge of the zoning and other land use restrictions of the cities or counties in which surplus space and real property is located.

If a West Sacramento community member is interested in serving on the 7-11 committee he/she can pick up an application at the district office or download it on-line at www.wusd.k12.ca.us <<http://www.wusd.k12.ca.us>>. The application deadline is: Tuesday, October 4, 2011.

DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Bridesmaids" (R) -- This movie represents a true breakthrough in the realm of chick flicks: it's a raunchy, heartfelt movie that is actually funny to members of both sexes. Annie and Lily ("Saturday Night Live" alums Kristen Wiig and Maya Rudolph) have been best friends since childhood. As Annie's life hits a low point after her bakery closes down and her boyfriend leaves her, Lily asks her to be the maid of honor in her upcoming wedding.

This movie has rightfully defeated "Sex and the City" as the top-grossing female comedy, and it's easy to understand why. The cast is made of ascending stars and truly funny individuals, most notably Kristen Wiig, who makes the most of her first big-screen leading role. "Bridesmaids" is funny, unexpected and, hopefully, a sign of things to come.

"Today's Special" (R) -- Samir (Aasif Mandvi of "The Daily Show") is a sous chef with big plans to further his career in Paris. All of that goes down the drain when his father has a heart attack, leaving the future of the family's failing Indian restaurant in Samir's hands. What follows is a fresh comedy about family, heritage and learning about life through the lens of Indian cooking.

Aasif Mandvi adapts his own sarcastic-but-insightful style into an earnest protagonist who has to swallow his pride -- as well as a great deal of very potent spices. The story trods familiar territory at times, but the charm is undeniable.

"Adam" (PG-13) -- This startlingly sweet romantic comedy has a catch: The protagonist isn't just quirky or inept, he's diagnosed with Asperger's syndrome, a disorder characterized by difficulty communicating with and relating to other people. Adam (Hugh Dancy) understands astronomy far better than he understands the simple ritual of everyday conversation. When the gorgeous Beth (Rose Byrne) moves into the apartment one floor up, Adam is determined to have actual human contact with this person.

Underneath his tone-deaf comments and awkward tics, Adam seems like a great guy, which only makes his condition as an outsider more endearing. Hugh Dancy wins praise for his portrayal of the complicated character, which is compounded by his chemistry with the lovely Rose Byrne -- a fellow rising star.

TV PICK

"Modern Family: Season 2" -- This endearing family sitcom deserves credit for shaking up what a family sitcom can be. It's more clever than cute, comfortable but not coddling, and even at times edgy -- without alienating. A boatload of awards and nominations have been heaped on the show since its first season. "Modern Family" deserves the praise, because for many viewers, it's proof that network sitcoms can stay fresh, relevant and funny to a wide audience.

"Raising Hope: The Complete First Season" and a good base for healthy toppings. Choose sweet potatoes for the vitamin A, add salsa and frozen vegetables. Add fruit and milk to make it a full meal. --Boil hot water and pour it over whole-wheat couscous. Couscous is very small pasta and only takes a few minutes to cook when combined with hot water and covered to steam. Add chopped red pepper, chopped onions and other vegetables or canned beans. You also can add dried fruit or nuts for a different flavor. Choose milk or juice for a beverage.

--Leftovers from last night's supper are quick and easy. Add fresh vegetables to leftover pizza and heat. Serve with a salad, fresh fruit and milk for a complete meal.

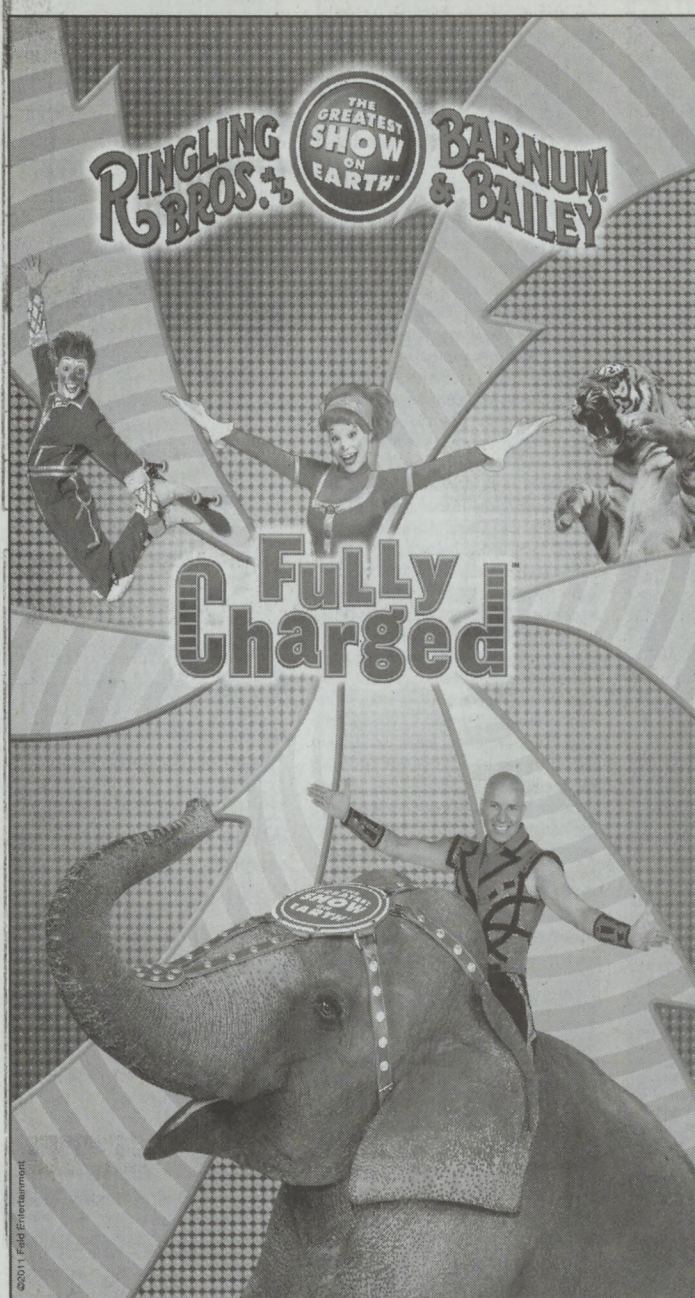

--Stir-fry meals are quick and easy -- and you control what goes in the dish. Include pasta, stir-fry vegetables, beans, lean poultry or other meat. Serve with fruit and milk for a complete meal.

What about frozen meals? Frozen meals are often high in calories, fat and saturated fat -- and low in calcium and fiber. How healthy they are depends on your daily calorie intake, how active you are and what else you eat during the day. A general guide for choosing a frozen entree is about 300 to 400 calories per meal. Frozen meals are processed and have high amounts of sodium. When looking for frozen meals, try to choose ones that are low in sodium -- 800 mg or less is best.

Try to find frozen meals that have a lot of vegetables and whole grains, which contribute fiber and other nutrients. Add a salad, additional vegetables and whole grains if the portion sizes are too small. Frozen meals are notoriously low in fiber, so try to find meals that have at least 3 to 5 grams. Stay away from foods that have been dipped in batter or are covered in sauce -- they have more fat and calories. Bowl meals might contain more vegetables, but they also probably have more pasta or sauce.

Have a great school year and remember to eat healthy!

Dorm Room Dining

Many students are headed off to college for the first time. One of the downsides of college life is the dreaded "freshman 15" -- extra pounds that many students gain from poor eating habits. Forming good eating habits as a college student can help lay the foundation for how and what you eat later in life. Eating fruits and vegetables boosts your immune system and helps ward off illness; calcium helps you build bones to avoid problems later in life; and eating breakfast contributes to academic performance. But don't forget that food is to be enjoyed! Eating and preparing foods with others builds community and can help alleviate some of the stress of college life. There are quick, easy and healthy eating options for you if you're faced with dining in your dorm room. Don't have a stove or oven? Don't despair! Here are some quick, easy and healthy ideas for dorm rooms with only a small refrigerator and a microwave. --Combine mashed fresh or frozen fruit, yogurt and fruit juice for a breakfast smoothie.

You don't need a blender -- just put the ingredients in a jar and shake vigorously.

--Make a fresh salad with pre-packaged salad greens, canned beans, nuts and a low-fat dressing. For a complete meal, add tuna or salmon in one-serving pouches, whole-wheat crackers, canned or fresh fruit and milk to the menu.

--Top a fresh salad with grilled or oven-roasted chicken strips. Include fruits and milk to make this a quick meal. --A quick and filling meal could include low-sodium canned soup, whole-wheat crackers with a single serving of hummus and milk.

--Another meal option is a mozzarella stick, canned three-bean salad and milk.

--Tasty options include canned chili. Add a fresh salad or baby carrots with hummus, fruit and milk for a complete meal. If you don't have time to make a fresh salad, add canned or frozen and thawed vegetables to the chili.

--Wrap it up! Spread a whole-wheat tortilla with drained and mashed canned beans, salad greens, chopped red pepper and salsa. Serve with canned fruit and yogurt to make a complete meal.

If you have access to a microwave, stove or oven, here are some more quick, easy and good-for-you meal ideas.

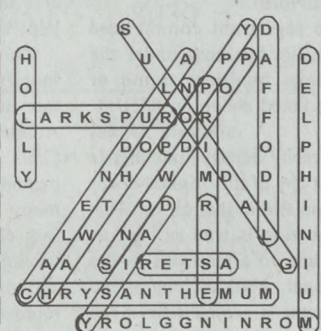

--For breakfast, try a whole-wheat frozen waffle topped with yogurt or fruit, or have oatmeal topped with fruit. --Baked potatoes are filling

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Marguerite M. Kempton in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo. The Petition for Probate requests that Marguerite M. Kempton be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests decedents will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

More Comfort. Less Energy.

Advertisement contains program highlights only. Full guidelines are available at www.chfflow.org. The CHF Residential Energy Retrofit Program is sponsored by CRHMFA Homebuyers Fund (CHF), a California Joint Powers Authority. Funding for the Program is made possible through a grant award from the California Energy Commission. *The following examples of 100% financing of qualified retrofit projects under the CHF Residential Energy Retrofit Program are based on a 15-year, fixed-rate CHF Loan. The monthly payment on a $10,000, 15-year fixed-rate CHF Loan at 3.00% interest would be $69.06 and the Annual Percentage Rate (APR) would be 3.403%. The payment on a $10,000, 15-year fixed-rate CHF Loan at 0.00% interest would be $55.56 and the APR would be 0.372%. The only fees used to calculate the APR are the escrow fee and the loan processing fee. Title policy and recording fees are not included in the APR calculation. The APR goes down as the amount borrowed goes up. Advanced Comfort & Energy Systems, License Number CA162634
